The Spirit of Giving

The spirit of giving is more vibrant than ever before at the Wayne State University School of Medicine. Partnerships with donors and volunteers are shaping not only what is being achieved today, but what will be achieved in the future. This is true because our supporters have the vision to invest in potential. They make investments based upon the expertise, creativity and dedication of the faculty and students alike, and the understanding that the investment they make in educating tomorrow's physicians could yield the ultimate return: the saving of lives.

This report for the fiscal year of 2004 highlights the many donors who have supported the School of Medicine through philanthropy. It is a privilege to acknowledge their support.

Totals representing 3,499 donors

Featured Donor: Dr. Ken Hashimoto

Kenneth Hashimoto, M.D., retired chair of the Department of Dermatology, has pledged a $100,000 gift and a $1.5 million planned estate gift to create a research chair in his name for the department.

Dr. Hashimoto graduated from Niigata University School of Medicine in Japan in 1955. He later immigrated to the United States where he completed his residency at the University of Maryland and then worked as a Fulbright Scholar at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Dr. Hashimoto is funding a chair for dermatology research.

In 1980, he joined the faculty at the Wayne State University School of Medicine, where he served as professor and chair of the department of dermatology until 1999. Although retired, Dr. Hashimoto still finds time to teach and he spends a portion of each year practicing in Japan.

“Research is essential for the success of this department,” said Dr. Hashimoto. “Dermatology relies heavily on basic science and research to discover new ways to treat illness. This specialty has grown over the years and has begun to flourish in recent times. This chair will help the School of Medicine and ensure that the department remains in the forefront of the research field.”

Featured Donor: Dr. Jeanne Lusher

Finding innovative ways to prevent and treat blood clotting disorders has been a lifelong passion for Jeanne M. Lusher, M.D., distinguished professor of pediatrics at Wayne State University School of Medicine and director of the Hemophilia, Hemostasis and Thrombosis Center at Children's Hospital of Michigan.

"My first experience with hemophilia, which is very rare in females, was during my residency when a one-year old girl came into the emergency room bleeding profusely and we didn't know why," Dr. Lusher said. "I was able to document that she had severe hemophilia. Since then, I have worked with thousands of children, and can see first-hand the marvelous benefits of knowledge gained through research."

Dr. Lusher's pledge will benefit research in hemophilia, hemostasis and thrombosis.

Dr. Lusher's impressive 35-year career in medicine is matched by her commitment to the School of Medicine. In 1998, she created the Marion I. Barnhart, Ph.D., Endowed Chair in Thrombosis Hemostasis Research with a $1.5 million gift. She subsequently added $1.2 million as a planned gift for this chair, which will be renamed the Barnhart-Lusher Endowed Chair after her death. Most recently, Dr. Lusher increased her bequest by $300,000 during the university's 2004 Faculty/Staff Campaign.

"Enhancing medical research is so important. I feel very good about being able to support it," Dr. Lusher says. "I would like to encourage everyone to investigate the possibilities of support through an estate plan. It is certainly an easy way to give a significant gift."

Creative ways to support the WSU School of Medicine

Gifts from alumni and friends can make a positive impact in many ways on Wayne State University, its colleges and schools, its research, programs and scholarships. Carefully planning your investment in the university can stretch the value of your gift, enabling you to do much more for the institution and its students and faculty than you may think possible.

A carefully planned gift also can benefit you and your family. Your tax savings can be substantially increased, and some planned gifts can provide income for your lifetime or the lifetime of another individual.

A cash gift or check can be used immediately in the areas to which it is designated, or a perpetual endowment can be established with gifts or pledges of $25,000 or more. This type of fund generates an annual income for a purpose designated by the donor – a college or school, a department or program, faculty support or student scholarships.

Publicly traded stocks or bonds make excellent gifts and can be transferred easily to Wayne State University. If the securities have appreciated, you not only receive the benefit of the full fair market value as a charitable income tax deduction, but you also avoid the capital gains tax if you have owned the securities for more than one year. For assistance with a stock transfer, please contact the Wayne State University Fund Office at (313) 577-2263 or e-mail Fundoffice@lists.wayne.edu

A bequest in a will or trust stipulates that the entire amount or a percentage of your estate be given to the university after your lifetime. Your bequest may be designated to a specific college, school or program, to a faculty endowment or scholarships, or it may be unrestricted and used where needed most. Gifts from your estate to Wayne State University are exempt from estate tax.

Life-income gifts provide income to a donor and/or another individual, such as a spouse. The donor realizes income tax savings for the year the gift is given to the university. A charitable gift annuity, for example, provides a guaranteed income for a spouse or other loved one, and a deferred income gift annuity provides you with additional retirement income. At the end of the beneficiary's lifetime(s), the remainder is transferred to Wayne State University.

Retirement fund assets would be heavily taxed if given to an individual. After your lifetime, the remainder of your retirement fund can be assigned to Wayne State University as an unrestricted gift or designated for a college, school, program, faculty endowment, or student scholarships.

Life insurance, in the form of an old policy no longer needed by the original beneficiary or a newly created policy to benefit Wayne State, can be a helpful investment in the university. Small premiums now can generate a major gift in the future, and premiums for these policies may be tax deductible. Many employers provide group life insurance as a benefit, and Wayne State can be named for a portion of proceeds. This giving vehicle is an important one for younger donors who wish to make a leadership gift.

Charitable lead trusts provide income to Wayne State over a set number of years and then transfer assets to children or other individual(s) named by the donor. This plan enables heirs to receive assets while minimizing taxes.

Other assets that may make helpful gifts while saving taxes include real estate (subject to university approval), closely held stock, business practices (law, medicine, etc.), partnerships, contracts, leases, royalties and patents.

Please contact the School of Medicine Office of Development & Alumni Affairs at 577-1495 to discuss these gift opportunities in more detail.
