"Bridging the Gap: Strategies to Get What You're Worth and What You Want Masterclass"

Are you a current or aspiring female leader who has ever wondered how to negotiate a competitive offer? While gender pay equity remains a critical goal, there are many more elements of a customized, competitive offer to consider. During this masterclass you will get a better understanding of what's negotiable, what's not, and strategies to better position yourself for the package that works for you.

Hear directly from Debra Williams, Wayne State's Chief Human Resources Officer and Associate Vice President, who will share relevant research and real-life examples to provide a "view from the other side of the negotiation table."

Debra Williams, WSU Associate Vice President and Chief Human Resources Officer

- Ms. Williams has held several top human resources and operations leadership roles
- Passionate about community service, community engagement, and professional development
- Received the 2018 Michigan Chronicle's Women of Excellence Award and Athena Leadership Award in recognition of her professional excellence, community service, and passion for assisting others in realizing their full leadership potential
